§ 1

Introduction

The name Shaw in Ireland is of Scottish origin having been brought to Ulster in the 16th century by settlers of the Mackintosh Clan. Descendants bearing this name can be found in all four provinces but the highest density is still in the province of Ulster. The Shaw family name bears the motto 'fide et fortitudine' which means 'by fidelity and fortitude'.

Shaw coat of arms

The infrequent occurrence of the surname Shaw or its variants Shoe and Shew in the early Castledermot records leads me to believe that they are all derived from the same person - viz. Thomas Shaw Sr., who married about 1755. For certain, the Shaws of Castledermot town are definitely descended from Thomas Shaw Sr., who, along with his sons John and Thomas Jr. are mentioned in documents relating to the 1798 rebellion as being members of the United Irishmen. I believe that the Shaws of Ballyburn and later Knocknagee, are also descended from Thomas Shaw Sr., through another son, Laurence Shaw, who is known to be living in Ballyburn in 1795. Furthermore, the frequent use of the christian names Thomas and John, and most significantly, David, among the Shaws, also lead me to the same conclusion. Whereas the Shaws of Knocknagee were tenants of a small land holding and were relatively comfortable, the Shaws of Castledermot town would have lived in relative poverty [see Appendix F].

One can only speculate if the Thomas Shaw Sr mentioned above is in any way connected to the protestant George Shaw buried in Saint James' cemetery, Castledermot and whose inscription reads:

*Here lyeth
the body of Geo rge Shaw Junior who died the 23rd day of March 1699.*

T.S.

*Also the body of/ George Shaw Sen^R who departed thi^s life the 11th day of/ February 1711
aged 72 years.*

*I rest in hope to rise again for it is said
none shall remaine unjudged at the jud^{ge} ment. I have paid the debt you all must pay.*

The initials T.S. seem interesting.

| ^E Laurence Shaw | married Helen German – see Shaw of Knocknagee; NOTE: The Germans or Jarmans or more correctly the Germaines were very big landholders in Ballyburn at that time. Whether or not Helen German is an ‘offshoot’ of this family, one can only speculate. |

United Irishmen of Castledermot

5th of May 1798. Examination of David Fardy of Castledermot, Farmer:

In August 1797 Fardy sworn in by John Bulger of Castledermot, Shoemaker; Stephen Hayden of Castledermot recommended as one of company; Fardy was Corporal.

Men of company: John Hayden, John Lawler, Peter Lawler, James Lawler, Christopher Slator, Mathew Maher, Michael Power, Patrick Bearney, ①^A John Shaw, ① Thomas Shaw Sr and ①^B Thomas Shaw Jr. ① Luke Brannick of Castledermot Yeomanry was his Captain [see below]. Fardy was to give a subscription of 3 pence to John Hayden his Sergeant to give to Luke Brannick.

Fardy saw Peter Doyle, Labourer after 11 pm in street, pike in hand; also John Farmer. Fardy knows Michael Shannon of Moone to be a United Irishman and Mathew Hayden of the Old Turnpike - Fardy gave him a shilling to buy iron to make a tool, and Hayden said: “everyone of them would want a tool” Hayden gave Fardy a pike a few days after. Brian Bulger is a United Irishman - Fardy gave him subscription of 3 pence which Bulger said was by order of Lord Edward. James Kenna a United Irishman and Philip Hoar of Bolton Hill. Fardy heard Thomas Reynolds of Kilkea was his Colonel.

NOTE: ① Luke Brannick, Castledermot married 17/2/1795 Mary Elms and had family including a son:

| ⁵ Thomas Shaw | NR | married 15/7/1818 Elizabeth McDonald – see below. NOTE: It is very likely that Elizabeth McDonald is the daughter of ★Patrick McDonald, farmer, of Mullaghreelan. My reasons for this assessment of Elizabeth McDonald Shaw are twofold. First, the McDonald sponsors for their children are members of this family, and, second, when Thomas Shaw and his wife Elizabeth McDonald, either die young or leave the area before 1840, their daughter Ellen Shaw is cared for by her grand parents, Patrick McDonald and Christina Murphy as shown in Scully's Census. Shaw of Knocknagee

| NAME | BAPTISM | COMMENTS | | | | | | |
| ¹ Thomas Shaw | | almost certainly son; married Sarah Mahar – see below; NOTE: There were a small number of Maher families in the vicinity of Knocknagee and because of the absence of Maher sponsors for the children of Thomas and Sarah, it is a distinct possibility that Sarah was the daughter of John Maher [died 24th of October 1800 aged 36] and Mary Glyndon and grand daughter of Patrick Maher who are buried in Ballaghmoon cemetery. John Maher and three of his children died young, which would mean that Sarah Maher Shaw had very few siblings. It could also account for the eldest child being christened John and the second eldest christened Laurence. There are two Maher headstones in Ballaghmoon cemetery with some duplicate inscriptions and they read: Headstone 1: Erected by John Maher in loving memory of his father Patrick Maher who died a.d. 1790 with his sister Mary and brother Edward who died young. His daughter Beth Julia Dowling died Jan 23rd 1845. Headstone 2: Here lies the body of John Maher who died 4/10/1800 aged 36. Also his father and three of his children. His wife Mary Glyndon Maher - Her father John Glyndon 1798 Blacksmith caught making pikes. He rushed the soldiers, reached the Barrow through Cox's Lane - swam towards the bridge in constant fire – his hand was seen to rise as he sank; the body was never recovered. | | | | | | |

NOTE: David Shaw was killed by runaway train cars at Genesee & Osborne St. According to his obituary, David was sitting in his wagon at the bottom of the hill, by where the old dummy tracks used to cross Genesee St. A train car got loose and ran down the hill. David became confused and thought the car was heading for his wagon and jumped from the wagon into the path of the oncoming car. A newspaper report the next day reported that the coroner had determined he "was not intoxicated" at the time of the accident. David Shaw is buried in St. Josephs Lot 75 Sec 7 1st NE No stone; David Shaw married 1 st 14/8/1853 Anne Hanour Souhan in St. Patrick's Church, Seneca Falls, NY – see below; David Shaw married 2 nd c. 1864 Mary Flynn – see below. | married 14/11/1880 Daniel John Nolan in Auburn, son of William Nolan and Bridget Lambert and had family – see Nolan of Knocknagee.

NOTE: Even though four of his brothers and sister Mary emigrated to Auburn, ¹John Shaw, along with his brother Patrick Shaw, stayed behind in Ireland. Later, six of his eight daughters moved to Auburn, NY – two daughters relocated to Australia and India. John's wife, Margaret, moved to Auburn after his death in 1883.

NOTE: The following is from Kathleen Decker:

I asked my friend Maureen Conboy-Ray, who is descended from John and Elizabeth Donohoe Shaw whether she ever heard anything about a second marriage for John and she said "no." Here's an excerpt from a letter I have written by one of their granddaughters. It might help a little.

"John and Margaret Shaw lived in Knocknagee, County Kildare, near Carlow and not too far from Dublin. I understood her maiden name was Keating, but Elizabeth Nolan Carroll says it was Donohoe. They used to go to church in Athy. Walk 4 miles. O yes, I heard every detail, I think. If they could not go to Mass they had to remain in their room the rest of the day. So no excuses. They had 7 daughters, no sons, Mary, Bridget, Sara, Ellen, Ann, Elizabeth and Margaret. Bridget went to Australia and oblivion. My grandmother told me that but I never heard any of the others ever speak of her. Mary married a British soldier named James Blowes, and went to India, and she and two infants are buried in Benares. I used to have that paper around but do not know where it is at present. I suppose Mary was crossed out of the family Bible because in those days even to speak to a British soldier was a heinous crime. I have a picture of our great grandparents and pretty good, too. The remaining five daughters came to Auburn. After John Shaw died (he would not cross the ocean) Grandma Shaw came to Auburn and lived with her daughters until she died at 87, of old age. I also have a letter that Grandma Shaw wrote to my grandmother from Ireland before she left and it said something about "why should I be afraid when I am coming to my own?" I always get a heart tug when I read that."

I know that Patrick Shaw and family lived in a house bordering the Bruen Estate on the road between Carlow and Castledermot, but I don't know anything about the Knocknagee area. When we went to the cemetery where John Shaw is buried, I remember that it was supposed to be in Knocknagee and that we had to walk through someone's hayfield and through some old rusty gates into a jungle of overgrowth to see the stone.

I know what you mean about all of the families marrying into Castledermot families here in Auburn. It seems like the whole area up and relocated here. If you were to read the inscriptions on the gravestones in the Cold Springs Cemetery, not just a few of them read "of County Carlow."

Most of the Nolans were from there as well. Could you do me a favor and just keep an eye out for an Edmund Nolan and his wife Hanora Walsh and / or David Campion and Anne Hughes. I don't mean for you to go off hunting for them, the Shaw line is the one I really want to finish and get as complete as possible, but these people are the grandparents of Elizabeth Campion who married my grandfather, Lawrence Shaw, Jr. They were all neighbors, and I know that the Nolans, at least, were from the same area in Ireland. I've got information on many of the Nolan families, but have never been able to place Edmund in them. He was b. 1794, and I suppose the rest are of the same general time period. Anyway, when you are searching indexes, maybe you could just keep an eye out.

Finally, about John Shaw who was married to Margaret Donahue. No, I've never heard any family stories about him being married previously. In the Scully's census, he just has the 3 daughters listed as being in the household, but then, again, I don't have any marriage information for him and Margaret, so don't know when they were married. All but the two eldest daughters came to Auburn, and I do have a name discrepancy for the mother of Elizabeth Vincent Shaw, one of the daughters. A church record here lists her mother's name as being a Margaret Keating instead of Margaret Donahue, as would be expected, but that's the only thing I can think of that might hint at two spouses for John. The two eldest daughters never came to America, though. One died in India and one went to Australia, and no one from that branch of the family (John and Margaret's family) knows anything more about them or their possible descendants. Margaret came to Auburn after John died, but there was no estate or obituary for her that gave any sort of information about her family. I know that Alf gave me a couple of Johns that were mixed up as well. Is there an indication of a first marriage?

Auburn Citizen 1916

Edward J. Dempsey, a former well known Auburn boy, who has ere this won his spurs as an efficient member of the New York Police Department, and who but six short weeks ago was made a captain, figures largely in the news reports of the street car strike riots in New York yesterday. Dempsey didn't escape unscathed hut he once more proved his courage. Today's Tribune tells the story thus:

"Their (the strikers') opportunity came about 6 o'clock, when two northbound cars and two southbound cars stopped close together at Eighty sixth Street to discharge passengers for the crosstown line.

"Suddenly the air was full of howls, and, immediately thereafter, of missiles. Men poured over the Central Park wall and raced toward the cars. Mingling with their yells and the screams of those trapped in the cars came the sound of breaking glass and the dull tattoo of rocks shattering the roofs and sides of the New York Street Railway Company's property.

"Motormen and conductors gave one look toward their former companions sweeping down upon them. Then they crouched on the floor of the cars, stuck their heads under any nearby seats and yelled for the police.

"Closing in around the cars, the rioters hammered with rocks upon their sides. The policemen guarding the line's traffic fought off those who attempted to climb on the platforms, but the rioters were rapidly tearing other holes of entry.

Rush Call for Reserves.

"Captain Edward Dempsey, of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, had been strolling down Central Park West, clad in civilian clothes. When the uproar started he ran to a police box and demanded the reserves. "Then, pinning his badge upon his lapel, he plunged into the thickest of the fray. As he did so a striker hit him in his neck with a large rock. The captain made a mental note of thrower, and wished ardently that the West Sixty-eighth Street Station had more reserves to ask for. Then he yelled for the men who were still defending the rapidly disintegrating cars.

"These, cheered by the sight of the gold badge upon his lapel, charged through the strikers to his side, and then, with Dempsey at their head, charged again and again upon the mob. They were too few to have much effect, and they were being roughly handled when the wail of a siren brought joy to their hearts. A minute later a big Police Department automobile rolled up to the curb. Before it stopped husky men in blue were pouring from it.

Nightsticks Play Tattoo.

With Dempsey at their head, they jammed their way into the riot. Nightsticks rose and fell with resounding whacks, and the howls of defiance which the rioters had uttered changed to a weaker tone. Again and again the police charged, until finally the strikers broke, poured back over the wall and vanished. Most of them did, for the police took 12 captives.

Mrs. Jennie Pullman was the only person severely hurt during the conflict. A rock hit her on the head, tearing its way through her hat and cutting deep into her scalp. She insisted on being taken to her home, 218 West One Hundred and Twelfth street.

Auburn Citizen 1933Ex-New York Copper Born in Auburn Dies

The New York Herald-Tribune today carried a story of the death at Amityville, L. I., of Edward Joseph Dempsey, former captain in the New York Police Department, who resigned in 1924 after a disagreement with Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright over prohibition enforcement. He died yesterday at his home in North Broadway after a short illness of heart trouble. He was 62 years old.

At the time of his retirement Captain Dempsey was in charge of the East 67th Street station in Manhattan and lived in the Bronx. When he retired he moved to Amityville and became a shrubbery expert and amateur gardener.

Mr. Dempsey joined the New York Police Department in 1897. He was born in Auburn, N. Y., on October 23, 1870, but went to, New York City in 1888. He was promoted to a lieutenant in December, 1906, and 11 years later was made a captain and was assigned to the Charles Street station, which then embraced most of Greenwich Village. This post he held until 1923, when the first of the prohibition enforcement shape ups brought about his transfer to East Sixty seventh street.

The circumstances which led to Captain Dempsey's resignation developed from a departmental investigation begun by Commissioner Enright in the fall of 1923 of alleged laxity of his subordinates in enforcing the dry law. He had been subjected to considerable newspaper criticism. Several inspectors also were placed on trial.

NOTE: The following in connection with this family is from Kathleen Decker:

I also spent a little time looking deeper into the family in Auburn that I have attributed to the sixth brother, Thomas. Alf Pullen gave me a family sheet that included his marriage to Catherine Bergin and births of 3 daughters, Mary, Jane B., and Jane. (Jane B. born in Burton Hall, but baptized in Castledermot? I've kind of discounted this Jane who was b. 1845) I have found a marriage record here for a Mary Shaw, daughter of Thomas Shaw and Catherine Bergin to a Francis Mulvey in 1866. The age of this Mary matched the one sent to me by Alf. The second Jane (b. Oct. 1851) has also turned up in Auburn. She married a Thomas Kavanagh there in 1873. The 1900 census says that she immigrated in 1869. I've also found a burial record here for Catherine Shaw, daughter of William Bergin and Catherine Nolan in 1869. I've never found a trace of her before this burial - no church records, no city directory or census entries, or anything, so I suspect that she might have come the same time as Jane and died shortly after she arrived. I wonder whether Thomas might have died shortly before that and that is why she chose then to come to Auburn to join daughter, Mary. That's the only information that I have about a family for Thomas.

Hi Michael,

Let me answer your last question first. I am descended from David Shaw, son of Thomas and Sarah Maher Shaw. My line is me, Kathleen Shaw Decker, (2) John Robert Shaw (3) Lawrence James Shaw, Jr. (4) Lawrence James Shaw (5) David J. Shaw (6) Thomas Shaw. That ends the line that I know for certain.

Now, your question about Ellen McDonald Shaw.

What I know about her are family stories. Supposedly her father was a wealthy farmer and Michael Shaw was a neighbour and worked as a hired hand on their farm. He and Ellen ran away and eloped and her family disowned her. Ellen and Michael's children were christened in the Catholic Church in Castledermot and Tinryland. I don't have any record of ^{EIEI} Winifred's birth, but estimating from her age in the US censuses, she was born about 1842. Ellen and Michael were married in mid 1842, so that could be a logical reason for the marriage, as well as the "disowned" part of the story. Michael Shaw didn't come to Auburn, NY, where he settled right away, until around 1870, but some of his eldest children came earlier.

Michael Shaw emigrated about 1871 and was naturalized: October 5, 1876, O&T Court, Auburn NY

Residence: 20 Anna St. Auburn, NY. He died from pneumonia and is buried in St. Josephs Lot 39 Sec 5 4NW.

Ellen McDonald Shaw emigrated: 1868. She died of old age and is buried in St. Josephs Lot 39 Sec 5 4NW.

When I visited Pat Shaw, a gr.grandson of Patrick, who lives in Limerick, he gave me the picture of Patrick. I had shown him my photo of David, and he looked at it and said "no, that's Patrick." I think we both had our hair stand on end when he brought out the picture he had of Patrick. One was taken in Auburn and one in Carlow, so there could be no question that they were two different people, but they sure looked alike. Pat and I had never met or even known each other prior to that visit, but almost instantly we were back 150 years and "close" relatives! As far as I know, no one has any photo of the final brother, Lawrence. He also lived in Auburn, but none of his descendants that I've met so far seem to know anything about any possible photos of him.

I've tried, over the years, to discover what brought the family to the Cayuga County area and I've yet to come up with any plausible theories. Family stories in Ireland said that the brothers went out to an "Aunt" who was a nun in America. There's that Mary mentioned in "Thomas and Sally's" household in the Scully's Census, but that would have been a "sister", not a "nun." I guess it's a possible mixup, or maybe she was a nun, but then she wouldn't be an "Aunt." There were some Maher families in Cayuga Co., but I've never found any sort of a connection. Lawrence and David both gave their residence as "England." on their ship records, so they must have gone there for a period of time first, but they both came in 1850. Lawrence came first, then David. Michael didn't come until around 1870, but some of his eldest children came earlier. John and Margaret's daughters came at varying times. Lawrence settled in Auburn right away. David and Anne Souhan Shaw lived 15 miles west of Auburn and he moved to Auburn 4 years after she died in 1863. Michael settled in Auburn right away. The Souhans lived in Seneca County, which is directly to the west of Cayuga. I don't know anything about how or where David and Anne met, but supposedly, the Souhans were from Dublin.

Auburn Bulletin 28/7/1882

David Shaws Death

Particular of Yesterday's Horrible Fatality – No Inquest Held.

The terrible fatality by which David Shaw, of No. 76 Fitch avenue, lost his life yesterday, was briefly noted in the News and Bulletin but owing to the lateness of the hour details were not available at the time. Close inquiry among eye witnesses of the accident enables a correct report to-day.

At about ten minutes to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, David Shaw, cartman was called to D. M. Osborne & Co.'s No. 1 office on Genesee and Mechanic streets to draw some extras to the express office for shipment. A clerk in the office got into the wagon with Mr. Shaw, and they drove up Mechanic street toward the "extra" Department. At that time Yard Master Lewis Chauncey, Jr., was preparing to drop some extra coal jimmies down the hill from the coal yard into the switching yard at the foot of the hill on Mechanic street, the yard being on the west side of the street. He directed two of his men, Crawford and Sperry to go up the hill and let the jimmies run down when he should give them a signal that the track was clear. They did go, and just as they started down, with the brakes all set and the two men on board to manage them, the wagon turned from Genesee into Mechanic street. Mr. Chauncey stood on the crossing with a signal man, Mr. Coffin, and gave the signal for Mr. Shaw to stop. Shaw stopped short at the check room door, about six rods from the curve where the track turns into the yard. But he suddenly whipped up his horse and drove straight up the hill, on the east side of the track, and when ten feet from the track dropped the reins and jumped out, leaving the clerk to recover the lines and stop the horse just in time to escape the cars. Shaw ran in a stumbling manner, across the track and into the yard as if dazed. Just after he went through the gateway, and on the track the bumper beam of the first car struck him in the back throwing him down across the rails. As the wheels struck him, he was rolled a head for about a rod, until the wheels finally ran over him. The cars giving a jump as they passed over. When the jimmies had passed, it was found that the unfortunate man's head had been nearly severed from the neck, and one arm was severed in two places, while one foot was cut across diagonally over the instep. He showed no signs of life whatever, not even a quiver of the muscles being perceptible.

Mr. Shaw was fifty five years of age, and well known about town as a quiet and industrious citizen. During the administration of Mayor Wallis [?], he was a member of the police force. He had lately taken up the express business, and had been so engaged for the past two months, having his stand on Genesee street, east of the corner of State st. He leaves a widow, his second wife, and fourteen children, of whom the youngest is aged two years. His funeral will be held on Saturday morning, from St. Mary's church.

Coroner Frye was notified of the fatality and made a personal investigation of the facts, which satisfied him that it was purely accidental, that no blame could in any ways attach to the employers of the road, and that no inquest was necessary under the circumstances.

Auburn Bulletin 1890

SHAW—In this city, Dec. 16, 1890, at the residence of the family, No. 76 Fitch avenue, Mary, Wife of the late David Shaw, aged 46 years. Interment at St Joseph's Cemetery.

Oswego Times 26/8/1897

Found Dead In a Tunnel.

The body of Thomas Shaw, of Auburn, aged twenty two years, was found in a tunnel about half a mile this side of Chittenango by a track walker, who was walking east from Kirkville. On the body was found a boot and shoe union card No. 67 bearing the name of Tom Shaw. It is believed from the position of the body which was lying face downward, with the face buried in the hat, that the fatal blow could hardly have been inflicted by a locomotive. He was a shoemaker by trade and left home to visit the state fair. As the shops in Auburn are shut down, he intended to visit the hop fields through the picking season, and was on his way there when he met his death.

Auburn Bulletin 1897INVESTIGATING SHAW'S DEATH.

The Canastota Bee says: "District Attorney Kiley has been asked by the friends of Thomas Shaw Jr., of Auburn, who was found dead beside the West Shore railroad tracks near Chittenango station on August 25, to make an official investigation of the fatality. Shaw was a young man and the son of an Auburn policeman. He was on his way to the Madison county hop fields, and it is said that he was beating his way for a lark more than anything else. When found he was on his hands and knees. An autopsy revealed the fact that death was due to a fracture of the skull. The young man's friends feel sure that he met death by foul play. Accompanying their request is an affidavit made by Charles J. Cutler, jr., who was on the train with Shaw. He swears that they boarded the freight train in the West Shore yards at Syracuse. Between there and Chittenango they were put off three or four times, but persisted in sticking to the train. Just after the train had left the water tank at Chittenango, Cutler left Shaw standing on a bumper in the middle of the train, while he went back about three cars and took up a similar position. While there he saw a brakeman come from the head of the train and stop where Shaw was. It was too dark to see what happened, but after four or five minutes he saw the brakeman swing a lantern out over the side of the car, as though looking at something on the track. Shaw was not again seen alive, and Cutler is said to think that he was killed by a blow by the brakeman. It is reported that another companion on the train saw the blow struck. Mr. Kiley will give the matter a thorough investigation."

Syracuse Standard 1897INQUEST UNNECESSARY.*Coroner Miles Thinks Tom Shaw Was Jolted from a Freight Train.

Officer Thomas Shaw of Auburn returned to this city from Chittenango yesterday afternoon with the body of his son, Thomas Shaw Jr., who was found dead in a tunnel Wednesday afternoon near Chittenango. The circumstances under which the body was found left Mr. Shaw to believe that his son had met with foul play. Coroner Miles of Oneida investigated the case, but could find no motive which could have led to young Shaw's murder. He thinks that he must have been jolted off a freight train while stealing a ride to Oneida. After viewing the remains, the coroner decided that an Inquest was unnecessary. Mr. Shaw, when seen in this city yesterday afternoon, said that he was now satisfied that his son was not murdered.

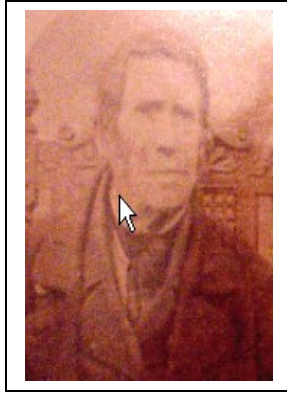

"When I find his cousin Thomas Donoghue, who went to Syracuse with him, said he, "then I will know how it occurred. Policeman Shaw has been a member of the Auburn police force for 17 years.

Alleged Larceny

William Gorman of Crooket charged ①^{E2B1}Edward Godfrey Knockrowan [sic Knockroe] with the larceny of a quantity of furze valued at £0 – 13 – 6. The land on which the furze grew it appeared from the evidence belonged to a man named Kelly who is dead, but, who previous to his demise, gave the furze to Gorman. On the case being called, Mr Kelly brother to the deceased – to whom the farm was left – gave evidence that he allowed Godfrey to cut and take the furze. The bench held there was no larceny in the case and dismissed it.

Nolan of Knocknagee

❶ William Nolan married Bridget Lambert, daughter of William Lambert and Mary Dunsey and sister of Mary Lambert who married 28/9/1869 Edward Corrigan b. 1843 son of Denis Corrigan and Mary Power of Ballyvass. Edward and Maria who lived in Castledermot had one son Denis b. 1871. Denis Corrigan, who lived in Castledermot married 16/2/1897 Elizabeth Doran, Carlow Gate b. 1873 daughter of Patrick Doran and Julia Lynch, Castledermot and had family - many of whose descendents live in the locality.

There is no marriage record in the Castledermot Registers for William and Bridget and I am relatively confident that neither of them is from the Castledermot area. Since Bridget Lambert and her sister Maria Lambert give their address as Woodlands, then I believe that they came to work in Browne's of Woodlands who were big farmers at that time.

In the electoral register for the parish of Castledermot of 1893, William Nolan is listed as living in a labourer's cottage in Knocknagee.

¹William Nolan, a man in the 70's and blind, while hitching himself along on a chair in McConnell Avenue, suffered a serious accident Thursday that may terminate fatally. Mr. Nolan while moving his chair to the supper table fell out of it and his hip was fractured. He was taken to the City Hospital where the fracture was reduced. On account of his advanced age the results of the injury are problematical.

Auburn Citizen 1915

"Pete" Coffey, who resides on the third floor over No. 24 North Street, narrowly escaped death by drowning in the Owasco outlet shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon, his rescue being effected through the heroic efforts of Patrolman Raymond Kellar and John O'Neal, a young man employed by Dennis Dywer. "Pete" was clinging to the cement wall on the north side of the outlet in a nearly exhausted condition, when Patrolman Kellar let O'Neal down to him and the latter drew him to safety. "Pete,"—beg pardon for not mentioning the fact before—is a parrot, but he is a most wise and knowing parrot for one only nine months of age, and when his mistress, Miss Mable Coffey, set him out on the back porch this noon to enjoy the sun, he evidently made up his mind that the walls of a cage were too confining for such nice weather, for in some manner he managed to get the door of his cage open and then, after gauging the distance with his eye, he flew for the shore of the outlet.

Of course parrots can fly—at least a little—but the distance was more than "Pete" had anticipated and as he was not used to aerial flights he fell short of his landing place by several feet, striking in the water of the outlet, and immediately set up a line of parrot S.O. S. and C. D. Q. calls. His cries brought Miss Coffey to the back porch where she saw at once what was the trouble and she lost no time in getting to the bank of the outlet where "Pete" was struggling for life.

Someone started a cry of "man in the creek," with the result that in about two minutes there was a crowd packing the bridge endeavoring to catch a glimpse of the drowning one. Patrolman Kellar was on the corner of North and Water Streets when he heard the cry and upon reaching the bridge he was told that a man had jumped over. Without loss of time he made his way to the bank of the creek below the bridge and there found young O'Neal, who, in answer to the question of "Where is he?" pointed out "Pete."

Without stopping to inquire how a man had changed into a parrot he held onto O'Neal's arm while the latter reached down and managed, after a hard fight, for "Pete" was mad, to get him to shore where he was restored to his owner's arms but little the worse for his adventure.

Some Time Before Police Come Upon Body of Daniel Nolan, Young Hotel Employe, In Rear of Hulbert Street Building — Poor Health Had Made Him Despondent

After firing four shots, apparently in the air, Daniel F. Nolan, about 24, who for some time had been employed at the Osborne Hotel as a bell boy, fired a fifth shot into his right temple about 3 o'clock this morning while standing in the rear of the McCarthy Brothers warehouse in Hulbert Street. The sound of shots crashing across the river toward Auburn Prison, aroused inmates and stirred guards at the prison, and the police had visions of an attempted prison break.

The officials who first heard the shots sounded the alarm and additional guards and policemen hurried to the scene. A hurried search, first conducted around the Federal Warehouse property in McMaster Street, failed to reveal the source of the gunfire. But soon officers walking along the New York Central tracks in the vicinity of Hulbert Street heard groans coming from the McCarthy property and soon found the prostrate body of Nolan.

The City Hospital ambulance was summoned and Nolan was rushed to the hospital, where he died about 3:30 o'clock this morning. He had shot himself in the right temple with a .32 caliber revolver. The revolver was found lying at his side. Dr. A. F. Hodgroan was called and he pronounced it a case of suicide.

Brooding about ill health for the past two years is believed to have been the cause. Young Nolan had been under a physician's care for a long time.

Prison Guard Hears Shots

It was shortly before 3 o'clock that Capt. Patrick J. Goff of the Auburn Prison guard staff called police headquarters that someone was shooting in the vicinity of the Federal Warehouse property across Owasco River from the prison. At the same time Patrolman William Carr called headquarters and also reported hearing the shots and asked that assistance be sent to aid him in the search.

Sergt. Charles Clark had a general alarm sent to all radio cars and they soon were at the scene. Detailed to the shooting were Cruiser Car Officers Carl Mochler, Walter Pitcher, Frank McMahan and Leo Flynn. They searched around the warehouses but could not find anything except some shells that had been fired, and four loaded cartridges.

Spreading out the officers soon heard groans coming from the McCarthy property. There they found Nolan lying near a pile of bricks, with a revolver at his side.

Patrolman Carr reported to his superiors that a short time before he had seen Nolan walking along State Street and spoke to him. The young man had been drinking, Officer Carr stated, and the officer told him he had better get a cab and go home.

"No, Bill, I need the walk," Officer Carr reported Nolan replying. About 10 minutes later Officer Carr heard the first shot fired. Today friends of Nolan reported that he had made threats to do away with himself several times in the past two years. Once friends of the young man, police say, took a revolver away from him. How and where he obtained the revolver he used this morning to kill himself is not known. Detective Sergt. William V. Graney learned that about 10 days ago Nolan purchased a supply of shells that fitted the gun he used.

The survivors of Daniel Francis Nolan are his mother, Mrs. Bessie Horton of Cleveland, O.; two brothers, John and Gerald Nolan of Cleveland, O.; a grandfather, Daniel Nolan of this city; and an aunt, Mrs. Leo Carroll of this city. His father died some time ago. The young man resided at various places around Auburn.

The funeral will be held from the home of his grandfather, 51 Bradford Street, at 8:30 o'clock Thursday morning and at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Church. Interment will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery.
